Come to Mornington Library to view 33 works of art created by artists of differing backgrounds to commemorate the 50th Anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Each work represents the artists' interpretation of one of the 33 Articles of the Declaration.

Of particular significance to this collection is the collaborative linocut Journeys and Destinations by Indigenous artist, Ben McKeown (Deadly Art Award 2011) and Melbourne based artist William Kelly.

Join Ben on Friday 20 May 2011 at 4pm as he launches this exhibition and talks about his journey as an artist and human rights advocate.
